I have only one motive in finally breaking the past incident on to you: simply to add one more "witness" to the list of those who have had their eyes open at the

I really think that there are probably many persons who have used such "Rheumana" but likely think it is useless therefore such scanty information &c &c.

A white football, or egg, with somewhat a glowing effect — but at such a distance that no distinct lines could be made out.

I had the "notion" at the time that it was the size of a large airplane and for a few seconds thought it might be a sea gull — then a reg. plane, until I noticed it was not actually long like our planes.

I had been very skeptical about all the "fuss" I had heard about "flying saucers" — until this incident herein related. In fact, I had no idea at all as to whom I should report about this more or less peculiar observation — because as the facts are given here, there was nothing particularly distinct to print — no details could be given — nothing definite. I only then relayed that what was seen did correspond in "behavior" to some of the comments I had read about relating to others seeing this phenomena. Thus I suddenly became vividly aware of the fact that there really were such objects — that really moved with a fantastic velocity, and so quickly. So I then checked out a library book on the subject and became concerned with what others had experienced in this regard.

In fact, the whole feeling that others would mostly consider me as another "crackpot", kept me from doing anything further about the incident. So all these years I've just more or less "put it out of my mind"; though a few times I've mentioned to certain friends that I myself have seen these "things" which people refer to as "flying saucers" (at least on that one occasion). In fact too I had no action as to whom to report such an incident. I just recently came across this old issue of Look Magazine; and thought I would go ahead — better late than never — and sketch in what I do actually remember of that incident. Nothing, (on my word of honor), has been added or changed as to the exact sighting which I observed. I am sorry that I cannot recall the exact dates or give the names of my friends who were with me: I had made several trips to the Lake there on outings at or to who was with me that particular time, I cannot remember [redacted]
